Ulbrinox is pleased to announce that it has been International Automotive Task Force (IATF) certified. The IATF is a group of automotive manufacturers whose goal is to provide improved quality products to automotive customers across the globe. Ulbrinox has been ISO 9001:2015 for several years now, and having that certification was a prerequisite to acquiring IATF 16949:2016. Although Ulbrinox has received the IATF certification, it will continue to uphold the ISO 9001:2015 certification in tandem. The IATF certification focuses on quality in specific ways and in all facets of the automotive market.

The process of achieving this certification took over two years' worth of planning, implementing, and completing the final execution. The certification process required extreme diligence; with all processes regarding automotive manufacturing calling for stringent documentation. The IATF 16949:2016 certification ensures overall quality, from the products themselves to customer service. This means that all Ulbrinox products undergo rigorous testing to be free of defects and flaws. Ulbrinox is committed to ensuring that Automotive customers, as well as customers in other markets receive extremely efficient and reliable service. With large automotive manufacturers moving to Mexico, Ulbrinox will be a local IATF certified option, and one of the few available in North America.

This is a huge milestone for the company, as being IATF 16949:2016 certified recognizes the level of service and quality of metal products that Ulbrinox supplies to the automotive manufacturing industry. Ulbrinox has a long track record of handling the challenging demands of the automotive market and is happy to be recognized through this certification as a premier supplier to the growing Automotive Industry in Mexico.
